What's New at Manhattan Plant?

We would like to congratulate Javier on heading the Service/Production Division of our Plant Therapy Team. Jacob who heads the Quality Control Division, will be calling our clients to schedule spot checks ensuring all plants look their very best. Congrats to Ray for keeping the office running smoothly now that he's working in-house. We'd also like to introduce Toni as our new controller.

With Spring Comes Rebirth

Check out our new name... Manhattan Plant Design Experts. Our new name represents our rebirth, bringing to you a new level of service. We have restructured our organization to better serve you. We have streamlined the organizational structure to create one common philosophy and culture throughout all of our Divisions.

Springtime is a great opportunity to create a rebirth of your environment and your attitude. Consider placing orchids, bromeliads, flower arrangements in your workplace. It's a fact that colorful flowers and plants improve the mood of the office.

Believe it or not, recent behavioral studies have uncovered quite possibly the simplest way to improve emotional health and wellbeing – flowers and plants. Considering the fast-paced and highly-stressed lifestyle most of us lead today, this comes as a welcome discovery. Besides exercise and other personal lifestyle changes as stress relief, one can now use plants and flowers as a way to feel better and more relaxed in the following ways:

- Immediately alter moods.
When someone receives flowers or plants, it has been proven that happiness is almost instantaneous, displaying excited smiles indicative of extreme pleasure. This result occurs in all age groups.
- Effect moods in the long run.
People who receive flowers or plants are more likely to be less depressed. They experience heightened enjoyment and are more satisfied with their lives than those who have not received flowers or plants.
- Brighten up spaces and create a sharing atmosphere.
Most people position their floral arrangements and plants in highly visible places such as reception counters and in hallways. In other words, flowers and plants are placed in areas where visitors are welcomed.
