NEWS CORNER

We would like to take this opportunity to announce our new supervisor, Jaymie Sharabi. One of her visions is to re-enforce our business relationship with you in a number of ways. She will also be doing spot checks on your plants and to introduce herself to you.

Her objective is the objective of Manhattan Plant Design Experts, to provide you with service of the highest order, and with complete satisfaction.

If you have any questions, comments, or challenges, please call Jaymie at 212-367-9667 x 203 or her cell 646-701-4266, she is hands on, and not afraid to get her hands dirty (pun intended).

Enjoy the rest of your summer!

Too Much Sun for Your Plant?

It's true. Some species of plants can't tolerate much sun. For example, Hostas are shade plants, right? Not necessarily. Hostas are usually termed 'shade-tolerant' plants, meaning they will grow in shade or partial shade. But shade might not be their ideal growing condition. Some hostas need a period of full sun to look and perform their best.

It is not recommended that any Hosta be in full sun all the time, but many Hostas are more vigorous and display their most vibrant colors if given at least some sun exposure.

You can follow the rules and choose the recommend plants and still not have success. The only real gage for how sun tolerant a plant is, is how it is performing. There are two clear signs that tell you your Hosta is getting too much sun:

- Browning on the tips or outside edges of leaves
- Dull color or faded spots on leaves

If your Hosta plants aren't doing as well as you would like, don't be afraid to move them. Hostas are strong plants ad can withstand digging and replanting.
